

Castro Dozón - Silleda

O Castro (Dozón) is abandoned by a paved track parallel to the national N-525, going up towards the Santo Domingo stop and then down towards the Santo Domingo hermitage.

The Camino continues parallel to the road until kilometer 280, where it deviates onto a path that crosses the village of Puxallos, where the San Roque chapel is located, and continues to Pontenoufe.

The Camino now descends towards the Asneiro river, which is crossed by a bridge, later taking a detour to the right towards A Xesta. From here, the green and rural landscapes surround the Camino, which passes through the places of Botos and Doisón, where there are some services for pilgrims.

Less than 2 kilometers separate Botos from the next town, A Laxe, where there are different services and a pilgrims' hostel for those who choose to spend the night there. The road continues again in parallel to the national road, with more than 9 kilometers separating A Laxe from Silleda, but which are bearable thanks to the beautiful places that are crossed, such as Prado and Puente de Taboada, over the Deza river.

After crossing the bridge, you have to start a climb towards the train station and cross a series of villages in the direction of Transfontao, from where you continue to Silleda. This town, the end of the stage, has a rich natural and artistic heritage, as well as all kinds of services for pilgrims.

El consejo del cartero

“In Ponte Ulla, close to the old railway bridge, there is a park and a viewpoint, the “Mirador de Gundián”, from where you can admire the river”. Jose Manuel González Iglesias, Correos of Vedra.
